PEEP and the Big Wide World is an Emmy Award-winning animated series that gives wings to the innovative idea of teaching science to preschoolers. Narrated by award-winning comedienne Joan Cusack, with a theme song performed by Taj Mahal, PEEP is a funny, engaging series that celebrates being curious, being adventurous, and being a duck. (Well, that's how one of the characters sees it, anyway!)

Young viewers join Peep, a newly-hatched chicken, Chirp, a smart and sassy robin, and an endearingly egotistical duck named Quack on all their wide-eyed adventures—from discovering shadows, to investigating mysterious tracks, to learning about gravity (sometimes the hard way)! The series is set in and around a pond, a bush, and a tin can, where Peep, Chirp, and Quack live and where they return from their adventures when the day is done. Surrounding them is a large urban park—a place of great wonder and mystery, a place they are forever eager to explore, a place they call “the big wide world.”

Beneath all the fun and simple charm of the series is a comprehensive science program—but don't tell that to PEEP's 3- to 5-year-old viewers! The series uses wry and distinctive visual humor, entertaining plot lines, and lovable characters to engage viewers in a way that allows them to learn about science without even realizing it. Each half-hour episode contains two animated PEEP stories that highlight specific science concepts and two, live-action shorts that present real kids playing and experimenting with these same concepts in their own “big wide worlds.”

“PEEP is a wonderful vehicle for fostering early science exploration and understanding; it presents science in a way that tickles the fancy and funny bones of our young preschool audience,” says executive producer, Kate Taylor.
