

A close-up portrait of Leslie Caron, an elderly woman with short, wavy, light-colored hair. She is looking slightly to the left with a thoughtful expression. She is wearing a dark brown, textured jacket over a leopard-print top and a pearl necklace. Her earrings are pearl studs with a small tassel.

Leslie Caron, the beloved star of classic American cinema, is one of the last witnesses to a golden age of the 20th century, a great talent in the worlds of film, dance and theatre who continues to perform.

Leslie Caron: The Reluctant Star begins in the present and unfolds as a journey that takes us back to a glorious time in Hollywood—a story seen through the prism of a living legend who reveals stories of a life lived large and with passion. It offers a rare and privileged glimpse into the world of the beloved entertainers of the 20th century—a world of contradictions, ambitions, dreams, nostalgia and intense emotion—through one of its most luminous personalities. Leslie Caron: The Reluctant Star reveals the glamor, triumphs and disappointments of a spectacular career and turbulent personal life.
