Market Warriors, a new, fast-paced adventure for treasure seekers, follows four antiques pickers on a nationwide treasure hunt as they scour flea markets for antiques and vintage valuables with an eye toward selling their finds for profit at auction. Over the course of 20 episodes, viewers will get to know the pickers, enjoy an up-close look at the fierce competition and the obstacles they face in the marketplace each week, and make their best guesses about who will come out ahead at the end of each episode.

Market Warriors' four pickers—Kevin, John, Miller, and Bob—travel to different market locations across the United States to purchase certain items within a short amount of time and a set amount of money. Viewers will learn about the different objects and their history, hear why the pickers selected their items, and find out the current value of the objects as determined by the marketplace. The sale of the pickers' items takes place at an auction on a different day, in a different location. All four competitors will watch the auctioneer take charge of the bidding and the picker whose objects earn the highest total profit at auction is the winner of that episode.

Meet the Pickers:

Kevin Bruneau has owned and operated an antiques business for more than two decades and is fluent in the world of buying and selling antiques and collectibles in the online marketplace. Kevin often travels hundreds of miles a week in search of the next, great find.

John Bruno is an industry veteran: an antiques and collectibles dealer and collector for 40 years, and an appraiser for more than 25 years. Along with his wife, he runs one of the largest antiques show promotion/management organizations in the Northeast.

Miller Gaffney has honed her eye for antiques and collecting over the years at places such as Sotheby's Institute of Art. She is a certified member of the Appraisers Association of America and the proprietor of an art advisory which she founded in 2006.

Bob Richter comes to Market Warriors as a lifelong collector and with the sensibility of an interior designer. Bob lives in New York City where he is a regular at local flea markets and furniture shops.
